

Justice of God

Connie Cook Smith © 1993

What if reincarnation is true
And you come back like me
And I come back like you

What if you hate
A white or a black
And so that's what you are
When you come back

Or what if you think women Should be confined to "their roles"
And then you become one,
not allowed other goals

What if you're an Arab
And then you're a Jew
Yet, somehow, through it all You're really just You

What if right now
You say "no way!" to gay
Yet somehow –
That's what you become someday

Wouldn't this be the Justice of God
To be "so righteous" now and then -- to be "odd"

Christ said, "Judge not lest ye be judged
So, through this life
As we dance and we trudge..."

Keep in mind that God does not interfere
And that's probably because we must work it out HERE

No simple solution like heaven or hell But respecting each other and getting along well

So consider, when you judge, Disapprove, or condemn Perhaps you're setting up *a life like
Them
